

Matching

A host of puzzles have been made that require the solver to match adjacent edges or faces based on colors or patterns. Perhaps the most famous example of this type of puzzle is Instant Insanity, where one must line up four colored cubes so that each side has all four colors.